The Nordita Winter School is a research training course, at which distinguished researchers from around the world lecture on topics at the forefront of theoretical physics. It is mainly intended for PhD students and young postdocs from the Nordic and Baltic countries. The 2014 school will be in condensed matter physics.

Accepted applicants will receive limited financial support for travel expenses, and accommodation will be provided.

Applications are accepted electronically using the school website below.

www.nordita.org/winterschool2014